STATINTL

SUBJECT

: Frank Snapp's Speech on the "Abuse of Psychiatry in Intelligence Agencies" at the American Psychiatric Association
Meeting

1. The injunction issued by the United States District Court in United States v. Snapp pertains only to "manuscripts or other writings" prepared by Snapp "concerning CIA, its activities, intelligence activities generally or intelligence sources and methods gained during the course of or as a result of employment with the CIA" (emphasis supplied). Thus, the injunction would not apply to a speech made by Snapp.

2. If anyone from your office or anyone else you know plans on attending the conference, OGC would be most interested in a report of what Snapp has to say.

PSYCHIATRY: USE AND ABUSE

Psychiatry has now come of age to a degree hardly dreamed of as recently as thirty years ago. As it has grown into a formidable tool for both understanding and correcting a staggering range of human ills, its very potency has raised the danger of its possible misuse. We cannot responsibly address one aspect without taking the other into full account.

In that spirit, the Program Committee for this Biennial Meeting has assembled many of the best minds in the field to summarize the growth of psychiatry as it confronts the major mental illnesses, psychiatry's reemergence as a major medical specialty, and the specific ethical issues raised on psychiatry's many fronts.

I am extremely grateful to the members of the Program Committee for the Imagination and diligence with which they have developed these ideas, and to the participants in the program for offering their special knowledge in the various topics to be discussed.

HARVEY BLUESTONE, M.D.
